

Example of Personal Time Price Comparison

Traveler A is going to a conference in Denver 09/01 – 09/03 and then will be going to Chicago to enjoy some personal time (aka vacation time) 09/03 – 09/05.

Traveler A will most likely book their flight as follows:

The screenshot shows the Expedia website interface for a flight search. The search parameters are: Roundtrip, Santa Barbara, CA, United States to Chicago, IL, United States, from 09/01/2018 to 09/05/2018. The results are sorted by Price (Lowest). The first flight option is a United flight from 10:15am to 6:05pm, priced at $767. The second flight option is a United flight from 9:55am to 6:28pm, also priced at $767. Both flights are labeled as 'Very Good Flight (7.6/10)'. There are promotional banners for 'Save $265* on average when you book your Flight and Hotel together' and 'price drop' offers for sandals and shoes.

Stops	From:	Time	Duration	Price	Availability

<input type="checkbox"/> 2+ Stops (9)	United	9:55am - 6:28pm	6h 33m (1 stop)	$767	4 left at $767

Traveler A may book this flight; however, because personal time is not a reimbursable, Traveler A will also take a screenshot price comparison of their trip as if no personal time was taken and add it with their reimbursement packet.

Example of Personal Time Price Comparison

In this example, the reimbursable amount to Traveler A would be $462, not the complete amount of their 09/01 – 09/05 trip of $767.
